A New Era Of Nuclear Ships

Quietly, with no fanfare, the United States Navy has made a decision that may be the most significant since the adoption of ironclads instead of wooden ships. It has decided that all major combat ships of the future shall be nuclearpowered.

This decision was contained in a recommendation a few days ago from Adm. George W. Anderson, chief of naval operations, to Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. Under it, every vessel of over 8,000 tons built from now on will use uranium instead of oil for its fuel.

This decision probably was inevitable. Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the "father" of naval nuclear propulsion, has been telling everyone he could get to listen for years that nuclear power was the future. He has called for 70 to 80 nuclear surface war ships to be built in the next decade, contending this would provide a striking force of substantially more flexibility than conventional Until recently he could be answered by quoting costs showing that nuclear craft cost half again as much as conventional vessels. But now the cost of nuclear power has dropped to only 20 per cent more than conventional power. In addition, the margin can be further lowered by savings in refueling costs.

The decision to go ahead in this field could not have been long postponed. Now only the concurrence of the Secretary of Defense is need-

Foreign Aid Realist

This columnist has his doubts that Nelson Rockefeller would make the most effective Republican candidate for President in 1964, if only because his "image," to use that increasingly detestable word, is too familiar to the image projected by John F. Kennedy. But if Rockefeller should manage to capture the White House, it is virtually certain that a new note of healthy realism would be introduced into such things as foreign aid and the inter-American Alliance for Progress

During World War II Rockefeller served the Roosevelt Administration as Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs. He came out of the war convinced that something had to be done to provide investment outlets in Latin America that would prove as attractive to local capital as that ancient triumvirate of "land holdings, buildings or hoardings." (The quotation is from a Rockefeller report made while he was chairman of something called the International Development Advisory Board.) The sterilization of wealth was stopping progress all over Latin America.

Working from his war-gained insights, Nelson Rockefeller set up an entirely non-government International Basic Economy Corporation in 1947, with a total capital of $12.5 million contributed largely by himself and his four brothers. The aim of IBEC was to get local industries going in Venezuela and other underdeveloped lands, and then, after they had gotten a good start, to sell them either in whole or in part to local enterprisers.

The first ventures of IBEC were amateurish and starry-eyed. A fishing company in Venezuela, capitalized for $1.5 million, failed because it hadn't reckoned with the fact that Venezuelans don't particularly like to eat fish. A farm development company went to pieces when it tried to apply temperate zone methods of weed control to the tropics. Said Nelson Rockefeller, ruminating on the collapse of the first IBEC enterprises, "It was a case of too much too soon, rather than too little and too late."

But all of this was 15 years ago. Taking a second running start, the Rockefeller brothers' company began experimenting in a small way with Venezuelan supermarkets. Here the company has had a phenomenal success: IBEC now has 18 supermarkets going in Venezuela, with seven more due to open this year. Other "supermercados" have recently been started in Argentina, where they have suddenly become the rage.

The cost of ground beef in a Buenos Aires "Minimax Market," which is the local name for one of IBEC's creations, is half the amount that one has to pay in an old-fashioned Argentine grocery shop.

In Brazil, the Rockefeller company started out with a grandiose idea that it might make money by organizing a helicopter company for large-scale dusting of crops. But it soon learned that no use could be found in Brazil for helicopters in the off season. A company set up to engage in clearing jungle swamp land might have succeeded, but the progressive inflation of the Brazilian currency made it highly unprofitable to import the spare parts needed to keep crawler tractors and bulldozers in operation. Taking a second running start in Brazil, however, the Rockefellers found an excellent market for hybrid seed corn from the United States. The Sementes Agroceres, organized to produce the hybrid seed locally, has become a good moneymaker. Its management is now entirely in the hands of Brazilians, and there is only one North American on its board of directors.

Another profitable Rockefeller investment in Latin American countries is a three-way partnership deal between IBEC, the Arbor Acres Farm, Inc., of Glastonbury, Conn., and local capitalists that brings new lines of breeding chickens to local farmers. Parent poultry farms set up under Arbor Acres Farm experts in Colombia, Venezuela and Argentina provide fertile eggs or day-old chicks to independent poultry raisers at a profit all around.

Finally, the Rockefellers have financed open-end mutual fund companies to invest in local securities in Brazil. Chile and the Argentine. The mutual fund idea has caught on in Brazil and Chile, but the Argentinians

Nelson Rockefeller is out of IBEC management now. But his past experience must certainly have vaccinated him against many of the idiocies which have been practiced by the U.S. government in the name of foreign aid. He knows the virtues of beginning small, and working up from there.

Marine Hero Kicked Out Of Corps For Shooting Spy During Scuffle

WASHINGTON - One of the most explosive incidents of the long Cuban crisis - the shooting of a Cuban spy during a scuffle with his Marine escort officer has been hushed up by the Defense Department's news man-

For their part in the incident, four officers were railroaded out of the Marine Corps without a formal hearing and were warned to keep their mouths zippered.

First to get the boot was Capt. Arthur J. Jackson, husky hero of World War II, who shot the Cuban in self defense.

Back in 1944. Jackson won the

Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award, for defying deadly enemy fire and storming Japanese pillboxes on Peleliu Island as an army of one. After he had finished his havoc, Incredible witnesses counted twelve pillboxes and fifty Jap-those involved, this column has pieced together the suppressed story of how Ruben Lopez, a Castro aegnt, died near the gates of Guantanamo and how Captain Jackson was stripped of his commission for defending himself and disposing of the body.

Castro Spy Caught

Although Lopez had been marked by naval intelligence as a spy for Castro, he had been allowed to keep his job as a bus driver on the Guantanamo base.

Watched closely, he was caught by Jackson in a restricted area and was unable to give an adequate explanation for being there. Jackson decided to kick the Cuban off the base and routed another Marine officer, Lt. William A. Szili, out of bed to assist in the ceremony.

They decided to evict Lopez through a back gate but noticed the lock on the gate was broken. So Szili drove off in a jeep for tools to repair it, leaving Jackson alone with the spy

A big man, Jackson appeared deceptively heavy-footed, and the Cuban apparently thought he could catch the Marine off guard. He didn't realize that Jackson was a combat veteran with catquick reflexes.

Suddenly, Lopez whirled and lunged at Jackson, grabbing for his gun. The hero of Peleliu fired, and Lopez fell dead at his feet.

When Szili returned, the pair realized that Dictator Castro could make an international incident of the shooting with consequences that might echo around the world. Foolishly they decided to dispose of the body themselves by heaving it over a cliff.

Next morning, they returned to cover the body so a Cuban patrol wouldn't discover it. But they brooded about it later, still fearing discovery.

Body Secretly Buried

Finally, they enlisted the help of three other officers and six enlisted men to haul the body back up the cliff and bury it on the base. But inevitably word leaked to their superiors, and they were called on the carpet.

Result: Four of the officers were drummed out of the Corps, the fifth was allowed to finish his two-year hitch. The enlisted men were merely disciplined.

Jackson demanded a court martial, which could not be granted without revealing the incident. When he took his demand all the way to General Shoup, the commandant angrily threatened to call in two officers and hold a court martial on the spot. He made it clear what the verdict

The whispers have just reached Washington that several high admirals and generals stirred up a little quiet mutiny a few weeks ago on Paradise Island in the Bahamas. Between golfing and fishing as guests of financier Huntington Hartford, they agreed to run out on Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara when he was summoned before the Senate investigating committee to defend the TFX contract. Later, true to their pact, the top brass testified that they had been arbitrarily overruled by McNamara. They said he had rejected their recommendations and failed to consult them again in awarding the multi-million-dollar con-

In contrast, just 90 miles away is Cuba, where the Soviet Union has between 10,000 and 20,000 troops and technicians and the latest weapons of warfare, but the United States hesitates to invade Cuba, though it is apparently ready to threaten the use of military force in Laos.

Nor is it clear to anybody just why "international complications" and the "escalation" from one stage in the crisis to another isn't feared with respect to Laos, but is given as the reason for American hesitation in Cuba.

The foreign policy of the United States today toward Russia is a mixture of strong words at times and long periods of inaction. The strange attitude with reference to Cuba because of a fear of offending the Soviet Union is, of course, explained in the hackneyed phrases of diplomacy. In the one case, it is argued that Thailand - next door to Laoshas "invited" American help, while, in the case of Cuba, it is pointed out that Castro has "invited" Soviet help. But there is in both situations an anomaly. For the government in Cuba doesn't represent the people, and in Laos the "neutralist" government has been threatened from within by a Communist takeover, and it isn't clear just what any government in that area represents. of newly-elected Congressmen are usually somewhat awed and concerned when they first appear on the Washington scene, and understandably so when they know they're about to mingle with the political greats of the nation.

But the President of the Congressional Club, Mrs. Clifford Davis, herself a Congressional wife for 24 years, sought to put the newcomers at ease at a recent meeting where she outlined some of the privileges now due them. They can get:

A special guided tour of the White House any morning if it is arranged by her husband; use of parking spaces reserved for Congressmen if she drives a car bearing Congressional tags (most wives claim the properly tagged car and let the husband depend on his identification); get packages wrapped free by having her husband send them to the folding room of the House or Senate; get her photograph taken on the steps of the Capitol with visiting constituents if her husband requests it: get free flowers or palms from the U.S. Botanic Gardens for her parties; buy a wide assortment of goods virtually at cost from the Capitol stationery rooms: check out books from the Library of Congress; give luncheons in an ornate private dining

NICE PRIVILEGES - Wives room in the Capitol if her husband makes the reservation.

But the Congressional wife also loses a courtesy that means much to many women. Her husband must proceed ahead of her on a reception line. Far from being crude, Washington protocol requires the elected official to precede his wife on such occasions. Another thing unlike home: in Washington newcomers make the Reserve bank presidents. But just recently an event in San Francisco forged another link between the two men whose offices are located on opposite coasts. The San Francisco bank reported the disappearance of $7.5 million in government securities, presumably through accidental destruction. The Boston flatly that the Comunists have broken the truce in Laos. Meanwhile, the debate inside and outside of Congress continues as to whether "invasion" would mean a big war over Cuba. But for some reason there is little talk of a "big war" arising when the United States undertakes military steps to thwart Communist imperialism in Laos. The Kennedy administration is well aware of the pressure of public opinion for a more determined policy with respect to Cuba. There is no doubt that public opinion outside the United States is manifesting an increasing disapproval of Washington's attitude of "watchful waiting" and indifference to Communist encroachment.

In the last few days, Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, Democratic leader in the Senate, has come out in favor of an economic embargo against Cuba by all countries in this hemisphere. He wouldn't have made such a state ment without the approval of the President. The plan undoubtedly is to mobilize sentiment behind the whole idea as the United States, through diplomatic channels, begins to urge the Latin-American countries to organize an economic boycott against Cuba under the auspices of the Organization of American States.

This, however, is a long and tedious process and looks like a temporary scheme to answer the criticism about a "do-nothing" policy. After several months it will become apparent that an economic embargo against Cuba is hardly effective. When and if, as Senator Strom Thurmond, Democrat, of South Carolina has urged, the United States faces up to the Communist threat everywhere and begins to consider a severance of diplomatic relations with the Societ Government, then -and only then-will situations such as have arisen in Laos and in Cuba begin to be changed from defeat to victory for the free world.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Two letters arrived this morning. Both concern motion pictures. One is an invitation to a party after the London opening of "55 Days at Peking." The other is a note from Generalissimo Franco's secretary, saying that France will be happy to see the premiere of "The Valley of the Fallen" with me in Madrid.

Small world, isn't it? May I tell you something? It seems like a few weeks ago that I was crying because my mother wouldn't give me six cents to go to the Saturday matinee at the Monticello Theatre. Yes, crying. It was unjust that other children could get the six cents (5 cents admission, 1 cent war tax) by asking, but I had to wash dishes and dust the living room and, if she wasn't pleased with the work, I got nothing.

Funny? Not a bit. The six cents, at that time, represented a bigger thrill than either of these letters do today. All week long I looked at the big colored lithographs in front of the Monticello. They showed Jetta Goudal, and sometimes Hedda Hopper, in a World War I spy drama. I was too small to understand the delicate nuances of silent movies, but it always seemed that someone had the secret papers and someone else was trying to find the secret papers.

It was pretty scary stuff. Especially when secret panels began to open behind Hedda Hopper and she didn't know it. Sometimes, when I couldn't control myself, I used to yell at her to look behind her, quick. But this was childish and people used to turn in their seats to stare at me. Mom also caused me to miss Chapter Nine of "The Iron Claw." and the other kids had to tell me every bit of it. I could get the shivers just listening. Sometimes they got scared telling, and once in awhile I dreamed that the man in the Iron Claw had me by the windpipe. My brother John sat up in bed and said: "If you don't stop kicking I'm going to tell Momma."

A born stoolie. The important thing was the six cents. Sometimes, when my mother was pleased with my work, she would give me a nice even seven cents and, with the extra penny, I could get four black haggies, a hard candy guaranteed to last from newsreel to the final sickening clinch of the lovers.

My mother has been gone almost six years. She would not be impressed with the letters which arrived this morning. The first, signed by John Davis, chairman of The Rank Organigation Limited.

says in part: "It will give Mrs. Davis and me great pleasure if you and Mrs. Bishop will join us for supper afterwards in the Orchid Room of the Dorchester Imagine flying to London to see a movie. Especially when you consider that "55 Days" will be showing at the old Monticello in a few months? As reduced prices if you get in before six p.m.?

The second letter - well, why lie? I feel proud of it because I wrote the little half hour movie called "The Valley of the Fallen." It was Franco's idea to build a cathedral inside a mountain for the Spanish war dead of both sides. It was Samuel Bronston's money which made the picture.

Ralph Wheelwright produced it in color. All the revenue from it goes to the Benedictine monks who maintain the church.

It is not, however, an epic like "55 Days." In fact, the trailer for "55 Days at Peking" may run a little longer than "The Valley of the Fallen." Besides, the Peking picture has the beautiful Ava Gardner. With her in it, you can eliminate the Chinese.

Frankly, I don't think my mother would have cared for either picture. There was nothing she enjoyed more than a good cry, and these are not weeper peepers. A long time ago, there was a movie called "Over The Hill," in which a sweet old lady named Mary Carr was sent to the poorhouse. My mother saw it until the sprockets wore off the film.

Incidentally, by the time that one got going, the price at the Monticello had been hiked to 11 cents in the daytime and 22 at night. It occurs to me now that she didn't mind blowing the family rent money on "Over The Hill," and a few dozen handkerchiefs. too. I recite this merely to show the injustice of the whole system By the time the movies were ready to talk, I was working and could pay for my own tickets. Simultaneously, I began to think that the love scenes weren't so sickening after all. Some of them affected by breathing. Once, when John Gilbert clutched Renee Adoree to his breast in a French barn, an elderly lady sitting in front of me complained that I almost blew her hat off.

As I say, movies have come a long way. Still, if my mother was here to read the two letters which arrived this morning, I know what her commen would be: "Who's going to give you the six cents to get there?"

Performance champ...

A man was talking to one of our salesmen. "I just wish for once," he said, "that the car companies would test standard cars that a person could walk into a showroom and buy!" The fact is, the exact model Plymouth that beat Chevrolet and Ford in 8 out of 10 tests at the Riverside Course in California -winning every acceleration test, the handling test, both passing-safety tests, and the gas economy test-is very much a standard, showroom Plymouth. Drop by your Plymouth Dealer's this week. He'll not only show you the "performance champ," but the 5-year/50,000-mile warranty* that goes with it. How about this Saturday?

At Plymouth's request, Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute purchased the test cars, direct from dealer showrooms—a 1963 Chevrolet Impala V-8, Ford Galaxie "500" V-8, and Plymouth Fury V-8—all comparably equipped. They conducted every test and computed all results. See your Plymouth Dealer for illustrated Official Results Booklet.

*Your Authorized Plymouth-Valiant Dealer's Warranty against defects in material and workmanship on 1963 cars has been expanded to include parts replacement or repair, without charge for required parts or labor, for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, on the engine block, head and internal parts; transmission case and internal parts (excluding manual clutch); torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints (excluding dust covers), rear axle and differential and rear wheel bearings, provided the vehicle has been serviced at reasonable intervals according to the Plymouth-Valiant Certified Car Care schedules.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

This is to give notice that on the 5th day of April, 1963, a Petition was filed in the Orphans Court for Allegany County, Maryland, by Genevieve Yonkers Schaffer, Administratrix of the Estate of Blanche Arbut's Chaney Yonker, deceased, alleging in substance that there are insufficient personal assets to pay all of the debts and charges of said Estate, which is, therefore, insolvent; that it is necessary to sell the parcel of real estate located about 6½ miles East of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, on the South side of the Baltimore Pike, which is described in said Petition by metes and bounds, courses and distances, title to which vested in Blanche Arbutis ORDER OF PUBLICATION which is described in said Petition by metes and bounds, courses and distances, title to which vested in Blanche Arbutis Chaney Yonker by operation of law as surviving joint tenant under a deed dated December 22, 1941, of record in Liber No. 194, folio 401, to which deed and Petition reference is hereby specifically made for a complete description of said property, subject to certain exceptions consisting of portions of said property conveyed out of the whole parcel as listed in said Petition; that after extensive investigation, the Administratrix has determined that the nearest class of collateral relations living at the time of the death of Blanche Arbutis Chaney Yonker on January 8, 1961, consisted of three first cousins on the maternal side, whose names and addresses are set out in said Petition; that a number of other first cousins had died prior to the death of Blanche Arbutis Chaney Yonker, so that under the provisions of Article 93, Section 145. of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1957 Edition), as interpreted by the Court of Appeals of Maryland, only the fifteen first cousins living at the time of the death of Blanche Arbutis Chaney Yonker would be entitled to share in said Estate, some of whom are non-residents; that there may be a person or persons unknown who should be included in said class of relations living at the time of the death of Blanche Arbutis Chaney Yonker; and that other persons may have or assert an interest in said real property sought to be sold in said proceedings under the provisions of Article 93, of said Annotated Code of Maryland.

WHEREUPON, it is ORDERED by the Court for Allegrave County for Allegrave Count

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
